This call to prayer originated during a meeting of several Christian leaders in the Middle East in 1992.

These men and women sensed God's desire to call as many Christians as possible to pray for the Islamic world. The resulting prayer movement was planned to coincide with the important Muslim month of Ramadan. The dates for Ramadan follow the shorter lunar calendar and therefore change each year by about 11 days. In 2006, Ramadan begins on September 24th; this may vary slightly from country to country, as it depends upon the sighting of the new moon.

Praying during the month of Ramadan does not mean that we conform ourselves to Muslim practices of fasting and prayer. Rather it allows us to identify with Muslims by praying for them during a significant period of their spiritual lives each year. In no way is it intended as an occasion to show any kind of disrespect.

The goal of this prayer guide (while far from being comprehensive in its portrayal of Islam) is to inspire and guide each reader as s/he pleads for Muslims before the throne of the Almighty. We encourage you to seek further information and to gain a greater understanding of the Islamic world and God's activities among Muslims, as well as first-hand knowledge by developing friendships with Muslims.
