

Three testimonies from the United States:

Haitham was a software engineer who married Jessica, a woman from a Christian background. Even when she converted to Islam, Jessica's Christian family prayed for them consistently. Jessica's father witnessed to Haitham regularly and modeled an authentic walk with Christ. As a result, Haitham became more religious. He chanted the Qur'an and started praying regularly again. He made the pilgrimage to Mecca 13 times, in search of peace, even crying out to God from a deserted hill in Saudi Arabia: "God of Abraham! If you are there, reveal yourself to me!" That is just what God did. As Haitham read the New Testament, he began to recognize the significance of Jesus. What he read was confirmed by a series of dreams and visions. By that time, his wife had already left Islam and recommitted her life to Christ. One Sunday, she invited Haitham to go to church. At the service God spoke to him, and he gave his life to Christ that morning. Now they both minister in their hometown.

Sunan was a 2nd-generation Muslim-American; her large family came from Bangladesh. When Sunan began having a series of dreams about Jesus Christ, her curiosity was stirred and this grew into a calling. In 2006, she entered the Kingdom of Christ.

Maryam, a Shiite Muslim high school student, was longing for peace and acceptance — things she had not felt from her unstable home situation or her Islamic community. When her older sister began attending a local youth group, Maryam was curious but embarrassed that her sister would forsake Islam. At school, the other Muslim students berated her sister. Maryam tried to defend her, but she had no convincing arguments. One day Maryam asked her sister if she could go to the youth meeting. There, she met authentic Christians who loved her and showed her the true teachings of Jesus. They took time to thoroughly answer her questions about Jesus and the Bible. Eight years later, after a radical life change and opposition from her Muslim family, she is serving Christ in the Muslim world.
